I saw. I just wanted her to know I was here and available to help. She mentioned that she wasn't going to be in the office so thought if she needed me to track down anyone I could.

I can't seem to turn off the highlighting. So I went with green for our update. Q#15 is a Region 8 question – Jim Hanley or Carol Russell can address. Is Melissa Lee coordinating the final response?

14. How much have you spent approximately on this particular cleanup? Since we're still in the middle of this response, we aren't able to answer this question.

15. We've learned that this particular EPA cleanup project to plug the mines in the Animas watershed, including Gold King & Sunnyside, cost $1.5 million and began in July. Can you confirm that?

RE: WSJ request, Sandy indicates a response is forthcoming for one of the three questions and indicates remaining questions should be answered by people on the ground.

In addition , wanted to pass along a heads-up that ANOTHER – MORE DETAILED REQUEST – is coming in shortly from the WSJ. I just received a call from Alexandra Berzon, of WSJ, who has more detailed questions RE: Superfund. Will forward as soon as it comes.

Melissa: can you answer these? I know for #2 yesterday we said EPA is compiling a list of mining sites under EPA jurisdiction where the Administrator's statement on field investigations would apply. We also answered #3 . . .

Thanks, nancy

Deliberative Process/Ex. 5

1. ~~Will President Obama declare emergencies in the affected states to open up federal disaster funding?~~ She'll have to ask the WH
2. Regarding the hiatus into similar "field investigation work," approximately how many mines does this affect?
3. Does this hiatus just apply to hardrock mines, or other kinds too?
4. How much has EPA spent on cleaning up abandoned mines since, well, as far back as your data goes?
5. ~~Relatedly, do you have any estimates on costs to plug the rest?~~ We don't have an estimate to share at this time.
6. How much have you spent approximately on this particular cleanup?

7. We've learned that this particular EPA cleanup project to plug the mines in the Animas watershed, including Gold King & Sunnyside, cost $1.5 million and began in July. Can you confirm that?

8. The owner of Gold King mine says EPA has not held Sunnyside and Kennross Corp responsible enough for the chronic leakage and this spill. What's your response to that?

Let me know if you're able to help with the rest – thank you!

Hi Tom, Liz and Melissa, I'm circling back on this. Our broader story is set to be published later this afternoon. I realize you guys have been swamped, but could you at least shed some light on the funding questions? And/or give us the last decade of data that this EPA website has for 1993-2005?

A response at your earliest convenience would be much appreciated.

Hi Tom, Liz and Melissa,

Thank you for answering all my questions in the last couple of days. I have a few more questions, not surprisingly. A couple of these I pinged you about yesterday, but I imagine they got lost in the shuffle.

It might be best if you could put us on the phone to talk through some of these questions, though I realize it's an all hands on deck kind of situation right now for you all, so perhaps tomorrow might be better. In any case, would you be able to get back to us on these as soon as you're able? These are questions from me, Dan Frosch in Colorado and Alexandra Berzon based in L.A. We're the main reporters working on this. I can be reached on my cell phone today at 202.906.9629.

Thanks much.
